The only person on the platform with him when he was thurst down the precipies was Leonidas Parker, a Sacramento lawyer of talent and excellent reputation. He was twice tried for the murder, and each time mysteriously acquitted. Recently he died, but left behind him an explanation of the whole transaction. A short time before Summerfield's death he came into Parker's office, that being his first appearance in Sacramento for a number of years, and told him that he had fathomed the mighty secret of making water burn by means of a preparation of potassium, which would separate the particles and ignite the liberated oxygen, thus creating and recreating its own force, and proceeding until all the particles were destroyed. Possessed of this terrible power, he demanded $1,000,000 to be raised in San Francisco, or he would set the Pacific ocean on tre, and let the world take the and hissed around as it always does, and seemed about to expire, when a sharp explosion took place, and, to his surprise, the liquid blazed in lurid flames to the ceiling until every drop was consumed. Deeming this worth considering, he imparted the discovery, with Summerfield's condition, to a leading banker, a bishop, a chemist, two State university professors, a physician, a judge, and two Protestant divines, who, with himself, witnessed the experiment on a grand scale in a mountain lake ten miles from San Francisco. In fifteen minutes every drop of water in the pool was

It was proposed to attempt subscriptions in New York, when the bishop rose and said that all that was child's play; that nothing would satisfy the wretch, and extermination was, under the circumstances, justifiable. All coincided, and Parker, who knew the gorges and windings of the Pacific road, was chosen as humanity's avenging angel.
